Initiative Vision

The #HealthierMO grassroots initiative seeks to positively impact the health of Missouri residents by transforming the current public health system to a stronger, more sustainable, culturally relevant and responsive system that can meet the challenges of Missouri's diverse communities.

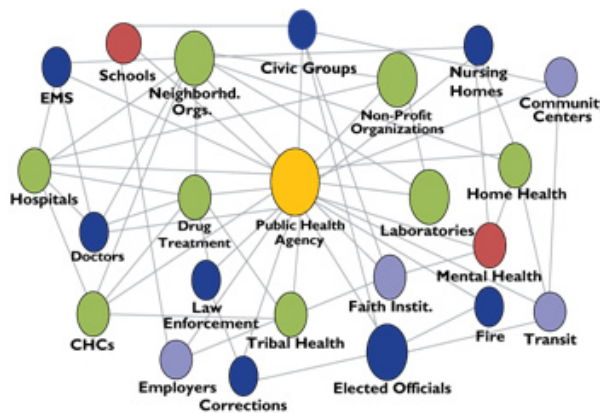

Phase one of this multi-phase initiative seeks to engage stakeholders from across the state in identifying what is working well and where there is opportunity for change. Stakeholders will work together to design strategies based on evidence and will develop an action plan.

The initiative does not propose a quick fix, but rather, advocates for long-term, system-wide change that will transform the future of public health in Missouri and offer every resident the opportunity for a healthier life.

Initiative Background

Early work began on the project in August 2014 when the need for transformative change in Missouri was identified by representatives from professional organizations, state and local public health agencies, academic institutions, and private sector public health partners.

Information collected from 360 stakeholders identified a fragmented public health system that lacks a systematic, coordinated approach, scope and funding. Continued cuts in public health funding threaten foundational programs and services vital to prevent disease, protect public health, and ensure a healthier future for Missouri residents. All agreed, now is the time to act!
